It shows most prominent tenet of Republican faith; money. conclusively that the present movement, like those which preceded it, has its foundation in petty, personal hate and hostility, unworthy of the least notice at the hands of Congress if it were not for the wicked and malicious style in which it is treated by that portion of the press which is opposed to the administration of General Grant; whose entire stock in trade is made up of calumny and slander, which does not hesitate to invent the grossest falsehoods in support of its allegations, and which, during the last three years, has waged a cruel and relentless warfare against every friend of the District in public, and, it might be added, in private life.

The only result of an investigation now would be to consume valuable public time; to take a large amount of money out of the Treasury at a season when it can ill afford it; to create doubt and distrust in the country; to drive away capital which may be seeking investment here; and to unfavorably prejudice those who have the disposition and the power to serve us. That a new inquiry into the affairs of the District would bring to light the corruption which it is alleged exists, is out of the question. The charges which are made now have been presented every year since the new government and the "drg," as it is called, came into power, and every year rejected as false and unfounded. Perhaps he still believes in his own heart that the capable few should rule the Government, and that the incapable many should be content with work, with the "Lord's Prayer," and the "Ten Commandments." It may strike many of our readers as strange that the lesson of those "Commandments" should be uninceded by him, for one of them teaches us to "love our neighbors as we do ourselves," and unless we agree that this lesson shall be construed differently for different classes of people, it means that was printed, covering every point which it is now proposed to again investigate. It is alleged that the proof exists which will show beyond all doubt, that the present officials have been unfaithful to their trust. If it does let it be printed. We are told, in mysterious whispers, of letters and papers, of the awful and horrible disclosures which will be made if a joint committee is only spooisted. These are only the old stories to which the people of this city have been ao long accustomed, and in the truth of which the great majority of them have not a particle of faith.

The table showing the amount of unpaid taxes by the petitioners places them in an exceedingly unfavorable light. They certainly cannot plead the excuse of inability, and their non-payment can be regarded only in one light—that of a plain and pal-table violation of the law. Mr. Coreovan.
